

ABSTRACT

A queue scheduler that distributes a partition worth of bandwidth to a plurality of queues according to a weight assigned to each of the queues. The plurality of queues are arranged from a highest priority to a lowest priority. The queues are serviced by the scheduler until each of the corresponding weights is consumed for each queue. The higher priority queues are serviced before the lower priority queues.